all the damage done for anything resem-bling a military reason.

Property has been lost in all revolu-tions, but it is not the customary thing for the "patriots" to profit by this cir-cumstance. It is not customary to con-tinue the practices of revolution simply because the patriot does not wish to go back to work and would rather rob.

To begin with, no ordinary citizenry would tolerate the indefinite continu-ance of the outrages when the last mowould tolerate the indefinite continu-ance of the outrages when the last mo-tive for them was gone. Mexico's 85 per-cent. does tolerate it, and beyond a doubt will continue to be robbed and raped and starved and murdered just as long as the 15 per cent. choose to con-tinue to do their patriotic duty toward these ends. The question is whether Carransa can stop them.

erder, the Senate will act.

The action suggested is foreshadowed in the resolutions presented by Senators Gore and Lewis of Illinois, looking to joint military operations. Senators who favor such action, and many have so expressed themselves, admit that a joint military occupation with Carranza would be ineffective unless the United States directs the movements of the troops. This action would, therefore, amount to absolute military occupancy by the United States.

Casas Grandes and Colonia Dublan. All the lave left Colonia Juarez. Conditions were quiet, the refusees said. No accounts had reached them of the reported murder of ten Americans in Madera and they did not credit the report. Carranzistas have promised that they believe train. Local United States Government agents have collected what they believe to be convincing evidence that Gen. Francisco Villa was within sight of and directing the massacre of the Americans of the Colonia Juarez.

All agents of buyers in the country were put out of business. Senor Monte, the agent of the International Harvester Company, was sent out of the international Harvester Company, was sent out of the country and later his estates were confiscated. He is a Spaniard was went to Merida when he was 15 years old and married a Yucatanian. The Carraizistas could not expel Arthur Pierce, the agent of the Plimouth Cordage Company, because he is the British Vice-Consul, but they stopped him from doing any further business. The other

The Maya Indians, according to reports, have refused to take advantage of the law. Belleving that some of the owners had been warning the natives against doing so the Government passed a law that any person found advising another not to take land shall be shot. The Indians have been threatened with imprisonment if they do not take up land, but have not done so yet.

It was reported from Merida yesterday that this action has not met with the full approval of Carranza and some of his supporters. They fear that the Indians will only take off the producing for the future. There are hopes that the law will be repealed.

The cleventh article on conditions in Mexico under First Chief Carranza by Mark S. Watson, special investigator of THE SUN and the Chicago Tribue, follows:

By MARK S. WATSON.

Victoriano Huerta took his time in preparing to leave Mexico. How much metal from the treasury he succeeded in loading aboard ship and landing in Spain is only a matter of guesswork, but he took all there was. Also his private property he "sold" to the Government formally and any other property he "sold" to the Government formally any of the greated in the conditions in Mexico under First Chief Carranza by Mark S. Dr Rendon said vesterday that both organizations welcome an investigation ithough he was not so sure that the commission could be investigated. "We have endeavored to free the hemp growers of Yucatan from the con-trol of trusts," said he. "For years the International Harvester Company and the Plymouth Cordage Company raid the grower only what they cared to pay and the grower was powerless. It was nonsense to say he could ship to this country. If he did he could not sell. 'We are simply operating here a rell-ing agency, where every user of the sisal can come and buy at the same sisal can come and buy at the same price. American bankers have aided us in doing this. Agents of the Department of Justice have been here and we have explained the entire situation to them. We welcome any other kind of an investigation."
